Task

1. Explain the content of the open data portal data.gv.at to your peer in an engaging and interactive conversation. Find out the datasets your peer is interested in.

Please, record your conversation and copy the text into the field below. You can use any software you have access to that would allow you to extract the text of the conversation, e.g. you can create an on-line chat room using https://tlk.io/ Please note that the earlier messages get deleted while the conversation is progressing. You need to copy-paste the log of your conversation periodically during the conversation before the earlier messages are deleted.

2. Engage in a conversation with your peer to learn about the content of another Austrian open data portal. Find out how many courses were listed by WU for the summer semester 2017 without explicitly asking for this dataset. You should not ask the question about the WU courses directly but rather provide feedback to your peer who shall offer possible directions for exploration and trying to guess your interest imitating the browsing behaviour rather than direct search (question-answering) interaction.

You should acquire information only from the conversation. Do not go to the portal web-site to look for the information on your own.

7. Copy-paste the transcript of your conversation about the content of data.gv.at *

_____

_____

_____

_____

_____

Quiz

Answer the questions below about the open data portal you learned about from the conversation that you just had with your peer (not the one that you explored on your own). The answers should be based only on the information received during the conversation without using any additional questions or external sources. You should honestly indicate if some of the points were not discussed no points will be deducted for it.
